Jim:

Were the "use of force" reports included in the evidence in this case I've linked below. The one from October 2011 involving the Griz players who were tased at a house party?

If so, What's changed since then so that something so basic was overlooked (intentionally)?

I'll be requesting to INSPECT the court documents related to this case to see for myself.

I know that's very different situation than Jesse Stevens case, I mean he was just a regular guy with some problems. Not a Star Griz player.

Jesse Stevens was represented by a public defender not a an attorney/firm with deep ties to city oligarchs and university.

At least one of the griz players actually touched the MPD officer involved, as opposed to throwing a wallet and lighter at them. The griz players got tased and charged with a lesser assault charge, not a felony.

Was Jesse Stevens charged with felony assault? seems weird, No? Seems a little inconsistent compared to the Stevens case, does it not?

I'm also including an article by the "APPEAL" publication that's dated 2018. In the article they basically break down why the city attorneys office's explanation blaming MPD is so Laughable. You're all supposed to be on the same team.

If it was me, I would be turning the city attorneys office and or MPD's responsible staff/admin upside down to figure out why this happened in the first place.

You guys run the city how you see fit though.

Just a simple guy here who still believes in his city police force and city attorneys office despite all this.

Would love to actually see something substantial happen here as far as steps toward appropriate discipline of responsible parties!

I think the public's rights to not be beaten and subjected to Brady violations by police and/or your office out weighs any privacy concerns for the officers involved.

Maybe your views on public safety are different than mine.

Maybe MPD and it's admin view production Brady/discovery materials as one of those "may implement" policies they have, that we've all become so familiar with as of late.

I wonder what policies at MPD are considered mandatory?

As far as I've heard from first hand accounts and partial confirmation from MPD

1. The police Incident reports that aren't being written!

2. The use of force reports that don't exist when they should!

3. Body cameras and dashcams that are "malfunctioning" and or being intentionally turned off by officers.

4. Racial profiling

5. Excessive force

6. Arresting peaceful bystanders/witnesses who never interfered with arrests Transpiring on public property.

7. Officers covering badges and badge numbers while responding to calls

8. Officers refusing to identify themselves or properly attach to initial police reports

To my knowlege these are all violations of the MPD policies set forth by MPD Admin.

What actions are being taken to remedy this stuff?

Regardless, I know the public would like to see substantive action from everyone involved in correcting these critical and dangerous errors.

APPEAL article:

I am sincerely glad to hear the office city attorneys and MPD finally talked about this stuff. That's the first step.

That action alone doesn't really make the community sleep better at night.

Especially IF MPD/city attorneys office produced these reports to the accused griz players, no problem 9 years ago to their defense council.

I'm looking at the use of force report right now.

Is there a disciplinary protocol at MPD for officer and shift commanders who knowingly misreport the subjects race in the use of force report (as in Mr. Stevens case)?

Maybe someone at MPD would care to reply/speak on this?

He's classified as white by both Corporal Malone and Chris Odlin (active shift commander the night in question - who's job it is to make sure the report is properly filed)

In order for a criminal offense of theft to be a felony, the monetary amount must exceed $1,500.00 dollars. Therefore, it is possible that Mr. Stevens did not actually get released from the Missoula County Detention center on October 10, 2019; because Missoula Probation and Parole might have had a hold on Mr. Stevens for violating his probation and parole for violating his probation and parole terms by consuming alcohol. It is my understanding that the police video that had been introduced at the municipal court trial and thereby became public record was attached to the Missoulian story and that several times Mr. Stevens can be heard stating that he is in violation of his parole.

No staff at the City of Missoula, whether it be police, judicial or prosecution has any control of what the State of Montana Probation and Parole does with respect to probation and parole violators. Probation and parole are Montana state probation and parole matters and are not city processed matters.

We do know that Mr. Stevens was apparently released from the Missoula County Detention Center on any Missoula Probation and Parole hold well within any seven month time period; because subsequently on January 14, 2020 Mr. Stevens was arrested and cited for a second offense partner family member assault. Montana state law requires law enforcement arrest of the assailant for partner family member assault offenses. Since it was Mr. Stevens second offense partner family member assault charge a bail bond was set this time by the municipal court. Also, it is again possible that Missoula Probation and Parole might also have placed another hold on Mr. Stevens as a result of his second offense partner family member assault charge, Mr. Stevens subsequent second offense partner family member assault likely also violated conditions of release on his own recognizance that the municipal court would have placed on him when releasing him on his own recognizance on October 10, 2019.

The police report in question that city police had failed to provide the city attorney's office with was not about Mr. Stevens, or Mr. Stevens conduct. The police report was a police department internal review report, reviewing a police officer's conduct.

Our chief prosecutor and office manager have met with the police chief and police administration to inform and discuss the matter in order to ensure that the police department administration understands that the District Court held that their internal use of force review reports must be considered police reports for the purpose of responding to discovery requests about any defendant's case when made by any criminal defendant or their attorney.

Subject: BuzzFeed News: Georgia sheriff's deputy fired after video shows him repeatedly punching a Black man

Hi all,

Replace the phrase "Black man" with "Native American."

Now we're talking about right here, right now (in Missoula).

The black man was riding in a Uber as a passenger by the way.

Sounds almost as ridiculous as a 'welfare check' for a drunk guy on a bike (Jesse Stevens) that ended with him spending 7 months in jail for NO REASON.

Remember the ENTIRE community spoke out against continued overfunding of MPD.

That will be very valid when the next police brutality event transpires or fatality happens at the hands of MPD right here in Missoula.

The public is getting pretty unhappy that we're not seeing anyone deal with the issues specifically reprimanding the officers involved in Jesse Stevens case.

Where is the reprimand/punishment for The police officers involved in Jesse Stevens case?

What about the city attorneys office who is to blame as well?

Where are y'all at on this?

Silent?

Complacent?

Checks out all the way around!

Have a great day!

All I see is fake woke pale faces telling myself and my friends that this isn't real.

Again, I'm telling you all this to keep you ahead of the ball here.

Do something NOW!

Regards,

-Matts

Georgia sheriff's deputy fired after video shows him repeatedly punching a Black man
Roderick Walker was heard saying "I'm gonna die," while two sheriff's deputies in Georgia pinned him to the ground and one punched him in the face several times.
