Subject: Gun "Safety" resolution

In no way do I believe that the “gun safety” resolution proposed by Marbut et al should be presented to school children. It is obvious in reading the pamphlet that the underlying message is to promote the use and handling of guns - - to kids that are way too young to comprehend the serious nature of this killing “toy.”

I suppose the aim is to plant the seed in the child’s brain that guns are part of life, thereby promoting the use and sale of guns. It certainly isn’t “pro-safety.” It is parents that should be educated, re secure storage – and found negligent if an accident occurs.

I am not “anti-gun.” My husband owns hunting rifles and a shotgun. They are stored in a locked gun case (not a glass door where one can “gaze fondly” at them, as the pamphlet advocates).

For the sake of all things humane, vote no.
