Budget Q & A

Q: Why did my property tax bill increase last year?

A: Several factors were at work last year. The Montana Department of Revenue's new appraisals of property in Missoula reflected significant increases in real estate value for many properties. The City lowered property taxes last year, but many people paid more because their homes were worth more. Voter-approved bonds and tax increases from other jurisdictions also played a role.

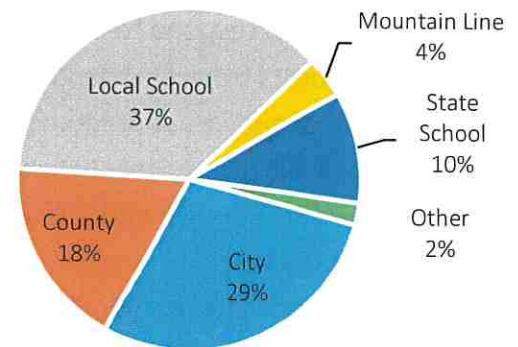

| Taxing Jurisdiction | 2016 | 2017 | Increase |
|-------------------------|---------|---------|----------|
| City of Missoula | $910 | $1,024 | $114 |
| Missoula County | $545 | $631 | $96 |
| Missoula County Schools | $1,017 | $1,305 | $288 |

Taxes for a home with a 2017 market value of $267,800.

Q: What part of my tax bill goes to the City?

A: In FY18, for a median-priced home, City taxes were 29% of a homeowner's total tax bill. The biggest taxing entity for a Missoula County property owner is Missoula County Public Schools, which in FY18 accounted for 37% of the tax bill. Missoula County was 18%.

Q: Why do City taxes increase each year?

A: The City portion of property taxes increases slightly every year because the City buys many of the same things that every household buys – fuel, tires, power from NorthWestern Energy, health insurance – and all these costs increase yearly. Citizens have told Mayor Engen and the City Council that they strongly support the services they receive and that they want to preserve them, but it costs the City more each year to provide those services.
